PREFACE

THERE are now fifty-one volumes of the Criminal Appeal Reports dating from May 15, 1908 (when the first appeals under the Criminal Appeal Act 1907 were heard), until the present day, and this volume is published in the hope that it will assist practitioners to trace more easily those cases to which they wish to refer.

It is in three parts:

(1) The Case Citator is arranged in alphabetical order. The cases shown in heavy type are those reported in Volumes 1 to 51 and those in lighter type refer to cases cited in the various reports.

(2) The Statute Citator sets out in chronological order all the statutes mentioned in the reported cases with the name of the case and its reference.

(3) The Index is a comprehensive index to the whole of the subject-matter of the reported cases. Under the heading of "Words and Phrases" will be found the various expressions which have been the subject of judicial interpretation.
